LOCK UP YOUR LEMONS

DO NOT TRUST THESE PEOPLE THEY ARE THIEVES.

Captain Starlight caught in a scandal on J1 after a shock reveal in an interview in the schoolroom.

The school room has interviewed Captain Spectacles and Captain Featherbrain on the 25th of February.

During the interview they were asked about their home planet and the rocket ship. Captain Spectacles was caught off guard and confessed to a crime. In a shock scoop, reporter Emily C discovered it was the Captains who had been taking all of the lemon cordial from the J1, J2 and H1 kitchens.

Captain spectacles said “we’ve been taking it all up to Planet Starlight... so we can drink it whenever we like”. Captain Featherbrain admitted that they had been taking it to Lemon Cordial Bay on Planet Starlight. They informed the reporters that it is for themselves to drink but also for the unicorns to drink to grow bigger. When they realised what they had said, Captain Featherbrain cried “we’ve gotta go, we’ve gotta go!” and they left suddenly.

SILENT BUT VIOLENT

Numerous reports of a lingering stench on J2 have been flooding in. The nursing manager on j2 has been getting lots of complaints about a bad smell that they notice during the day. There have been no reports at night time and most complaints say that it is worse after lunch time. Each time a complaint is made, people have sighted Captain Silly Billy in the area and roomers are starting to spread. A unnamed captain was heard talking about how much baked beans Captain Silly Billy has been eating. Paul, the NUM, has launched an investigation into the smell and said reports should be back soon. If it is found to be Captain Silly Billy, baked beans may have to be banned in the hospital. Hospital policy says that patients have enough to deal with without bad smells lingering in the air. Infection control will have a report ready by next friday and the results will be published in next month's newspaper. Story by Aaliyah.

The Kangaroo Inside Nobbys

The Awabakal Peoples around Newcastle have the most amazing Dreaming stories.

A very long time ago when there were still giant sized animals around, all the animals within the area would separate into two groups - boys and girls. They all lived together peacefully. One day a large male kangaroo attacked a female wallaby. This was against the law. He was banished from the kangaroo group forever.

After a long chase by the wallabies the kangaroo reached Muloobinba, or Newcastle. He entered the sea and he thought how lucky he was to be able to slip away from the wallabies. The wallabies thought he had drowned. But the kangaroo had swum to Nobbys Island and entered the tall rocky outcrop, he was hiding from everyone in plain sight.

He is still there today but he won't come out because he is never sure if it's safe from the wallabies. Sometimes he gets upset and jumps around. When his giant tail crashes against the earth it makes the rocks fall and the ground tremble.

The Awabakal people believe this is what causes earthquakes!

As they were rushing out of the interview, Reporter Emily asked them what Nanna Starlight would have to say about this, They were heard muttering "No comment". These two Captains are currently in hiding, somewhere in John Hunter Hospital. If anyone sees anything, please report to the school room. If they are found they will receive a whole 3 years in jail. Report by Isabella L

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

I have a very important message to get across to the John Hunter Hospital patients. If you see the captains, DO NOT DOB THEM IN! We need them. I look forward every week to bingo and the little ones would be very miserable without them. Is stealing lemon cordial really that bad? It's either the captains suffering in jail or the kids suffering without them. So do us all a favour and SAVE THE CAPTAINS! By MB

School Principal feels reflective

JHCH School Principal Sally Graham reflects on what starting school was like for her, all those years ago.

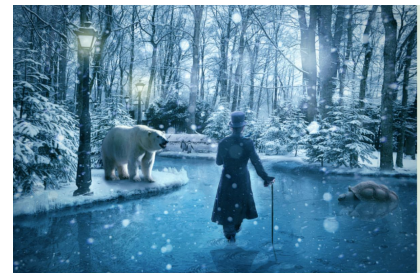

Sally started school at Bob's Farm Primary school. When asked if her first teacher was nice she replied "yes, he was nice. He was my dad." Because Sally's dad was the teacher at the school and because they lived next to the school, Sally was going over to the school and sneaking into class before she was old enough to even start. She learnt to read before she started school officially and loved having her dad as her teacher. Looking way back to her early days, Sally remembered being outside a lot and always lots of fun.

A Mysterious World

In a world full of crystals falling from the sky, fairy dust everywhere, animals popping out of corners that you didn't even know existed, I feel frozen with excitement and a touch of fear because you never know what could come up behind you. The lights add more mystery with shadows that brings the mystery world to life. The animals are making homes to the world that's not really there. The trees add a glow making more hope that there is a real world just like this. Story excerpt by Elki

A Mysterious world

The school room has had new blinds created by local Aboriginal artist Saretta Fielding. That tells a story of our local landscape and animals from a traditional perspective. If you're on J1 pop in and have a look.

Newcastle's First Soccer Team

The first ever soccer game in Newcastle was played by the Minmi Rangers in 1885. A field was marked out at what is now Lambton Park. The match, which ended in a 2-2 draw, attracted about 600 spectators. A plaque at Lambton Park commemorates the game, which was between South Lambton (Hamilton and other areas) and North Lambton (Minmi Rangers). This became the first official soccer game in the Newcastle area. Story by Noah

This photograph shows the Minmi Rangers - the first soccer club in the history of Newcastle.
